

Guest editorialist David Suzuki argues that environmental education is more important than ever; as young people continue to be increasingly targeted by marketing campaigns, it is critical that they be also exposed to an ethic that promotes conservation, not just consumption.

All I Need To Know About Life I Learned From TREES

Grow where you're planted.

It's Important to have roots.

Don't pine away over old flames.

It's perfectly okay to be a late bloomer.

Get all spruced up when you have a hot date.

If the party gets boring, just pick up and leaf.

Be sure to cover your bare ash in the winter.

To be politically correct, don't wear firs.

Avoid people who would like to cut you down.

It's more important to be honest than poplar.

In today's complex world, it pays to branch out.

If you want to maintain accurate records, keep a log.

Be flexible so you don't break when a harsh wind blows.

Sometimes you have to shed your old bark in order to grow.

If you really believe in something don't, be afraid to go out on a limb.

As you approach the autumn of your life, you can't hide your true colors.
